FOREWORD

WE HAVE followed the ship idea in our year book because Elizabeth City is a river town and owes much of its progress to the river trade, and because most of us have been brought up beside the waters of the Pasquotank and only forty miles from the Atlantic ocean.

Although our book has its faults, it is the product of our best endeavor and we will love it for the memories of our dear old high school days at E. C. H. S.
As a token of our appreciation of his labors and his ever inspiring interest in all our aims and ambitions at all times, We, the Staff, the Senior Class and Students of Elizabeth City High School dedicate this, our tenth edition of

"The Spotlight"

To Mr. E. H. Hartsell

Our strong band can ne'er be broken
Formed at E. C. High;
Far surpassing wealth unspoken
Sealed by friendship's tie.

Chorus:

Lift the chorus, speed it onward,
Loud her praises cry;
Hail to thee, our Alma Mater!
Hail to E. C. High!

School life here at best is passing,
Fast the moments fly;
Let us pledge in word and deed,
Our love to E. C. High.

Class Poem

I
The Good Ship '30 has come to port;
Its four year voyage has seemed so short.
Our mates of the voyage are anxious to see
How the haven of Graduation will be.

II
Our first year of sailing was peaceful and calm
As lowest of gobs we labored along
Taking our orders from higher men,
And consoling ourselves with "Just wait till when——"

III
Then we were promoted to second place
And could meet our superiors face to face.
We walked around like we owned the boat
And made the fresh, green gobs our goat.

IV
Heave ho! me hearties we're almost on top,
This advancement to third place will be our last stop
Before we're shipmasters. Now heed each mistake
Of those whose places we soon will take.

V
Then we began the east lap of the sail,
Giving orders with strong voices, hearty and hale.
And we almost regret that our voyage is near done,
For it seems as though it has just begun.

VI
And now that our first voyage is complete,
We've another to make that's a far greater feat.
Behold, fellow shipmates, the Sea of Life!
We must sail it in spite of its storm and strife.

VII
So here's power to you all and of voyages the best
Good shipmates of '30 of E. C. H. S.
Class Prophesies

We went down by Pluto's inferno,
To see our classmates there
Some were shovelin' coal in the furnace
How we laughed to see 'em cuss and swear.

The first person we encounter is Russell Evans. He was usually first in every enterprise on earth and he keeps up his record. He was such a good student back at E. C. H. S. that we fail to see why he should be made to answer silly questions till the end of time. His blond, bespectacled questioner looks strangely familiar and many of the questions are "en francais."

What horrid deeds did Teen-da, Maret, Glenna and Susie commit? Our sweet candy girls must stand here eternally and implore little boy spirits to stop snitching candy. But all their pleadings are in vain.

Next we see through the mist and steam, Hugh Sawyer, known on earth as Tubby. As soon as we come within his range of vision he greets us as joyfully as a spirit could greet mortal visitors. His punishment, he tells us is lending notebook paper to boy spirits. Not a single girl among them! He dries a furtive tear at this point.

Dora, Margaret Simpson, Ida Catherine, Mary Frances and Mary Heath play a never ending game of basketball with some Hertford spirits who have the lead by only a few points. What a punishment!

This looks pleasant. It seems to be a banquet scene. Not the one from Macbeth but the one of J. A. Jones. Honey Johnson is making an after dinner speech and he does not look exactly happy. Pauline Deans and Leon are among those seated around the festive board and they are supremely miserable because of their inability to interrupt.

Rennie, Mary Raper and Ruth Davenport are as inseparable in spirit as they used to be on Burgess Street in the old days. As they pass we overhear allusions of "bumming to Hertford." We stop them and they tell us that for the last ten years they have been trying to hook a ride to that fair metropolis but so far they have been unsuccessful.

What is this fearful clamor? Thru the steam and mist gallops Pluto's mighty black steeds in gay trappings. They have been borrowed especially for this occasion, the driver, Sybil Alexander, tells us. She wields the powerful seven passenger chariot as if she were accustomed to it. She is accompanied by the girls upon whom we always depended to keep the class of '30 upon an even keel. Oh, how they have changed! Wilma Tillett greets us effusively and wants to know what we are doing in Hades in our mortal forms. We tell her that for years we have sought trace of our former classmates and seem to have at last found their rendezvous. Martha Berry sits in the back of the chariot, swinging her feet, and singing in a high squeaky voice that old favorite "I'm No Man's Mama Now." Thelma Cartwright and Millicent Harris jump out and give us a demonstration of The Hades Hop which they have just mastered after a thirty day course. Hazel Silverthorne sits quietly on the floor of the chariot and slyly eats all the cakes from the lunch baskets. We think her punishment rather light until we remember that she didn't like pink frosted cakes. At this juncture Rachel Miller comes puffing up. She declares that Martha pushed her off the chariot as they were rounding a sharp curve. But her same old sunny nature overcomes any hard feelings and "Everybody's Happy." with many good-byes and a couple of ancient "tootle-oes" thrown in, they take their noisy departure.

We proceed on our journey in a thoughtful mood. More than ever before we realize that it never pays to be good all the time. Just see what they received!

As we stroll along Asbestos Alley we peruse the guidebook and find that the punishment influtred on Mary Johnson and Clarine Bunch is that of typing exercises correctly down to the last word and then, making an error, are not allowed to cuss a single "damn."

Now we reach old Pluto's kingly grotto. He is seated upon his throne, his sceptre in his hand. We are just in time for the kings entertainment. It is in the form of an acrobatic and dancing troupe. We are acquainted with many of them. There is a chorus of six consisting of Alice Woodell and Fish Harrell, Alice Barrow and Rayford Provo, Alice Davis and John Shannonhouse. Evidently ole Pluto favors the "Alcels."

The King's favorite is seated on his right. She smiles and winks at us and then we recognized her as our class beauty, Isa Moran.

From here we go on down Asphalt Avenue and at the intersection of Brimstone Boulevard whom should we see directing traffic but our own Rives Taylor. He is trying to settle a heated argument between two excited lady motorists. Upon closer scrutiny we find them to be Dorothy Hicks and Camilla Foreman.

"Paradise Park" is the label of one of the busses passing. We catch it, interested to see if any of our classmates were able to make the grade to Paradise.

We peek in the gate and over the wall, because for some unknown reason we are barred. We see two beautiful statues standing with crossed hands and uplifted eyes. No, they move. Bless our souls, if it isn't St. Nina and St. Bessie. We knew they'd get to Paradise eventually.

Gee, there comes one of the keepers. Hope he wont chase us off the wall. He throws someone out on his ear. Sympathetically, we clamber from our perches to help raise the fallen brother. It turns out to be no other than Ruth Lane. But just why she should be thrown out of this heavenly place we fail to see. She carefully explains that she was only trying to get her some angel wings. She had been caught in the act of breaking into Wright Bros. Wing Co.

We resume our seats on the wall and discern two spirits walking slowly toward us. They are reading books and pull little express wagons filled with books. Maret Winder is the one with glasses and the one munching potato chips so thoughtfully is her ole pal, Augusta Walker.

Here comes a buxom milkmaid. She is singing "Down on the Farm" in a cheery voice. Yes, that's right it's Bessie Markham Lowry.

Hearing a flutting of wings above our heads we look up to see Helen Garrett and Margaret Lassiter flapping their great white wings violently. They are trying to set an endurance record for angels. They seem to have no trouble in staying aloft and look as if they weigh only a few ounces at the most. How different are the shapes which we assume when we dispense mortal upholstering.

Elizabeth Greenleaf now claims our attention. We had failed to recognize her before because of her solemn features and her immobile position in a chair. We yell over the wall to her and inquire after her happiness and well-being. She informs us that because of her good works she was allowed entrance into Elysium but that she had been deprived of her giggling and still worse, she had to keep still. At this point she almost wept but we threw her a box of Animal Crackers and thus averted a calamity.

We consult the guide book once more and, to our surprise, find that we have seen all the members of the class of '30. Our curiosity satisfied, we turn our weary footsteps toward the elevator. We punch the button marked, "Upper World" and soon we find ourselves once more upon the hotel corner. Feeling that we need refreshments, we repair to drugstore for well earned dopes.

Last Will and Testament of Class '30

We, the Seniors of nineteen-thirty, in this our last will and testament do irrevocably give and bequeath the following privileges and properties:

Item I: To the Juniors:

1. All the Senior privileges they can find.
2. THE SPOTLIGHT accompanied by our most heartfelt sympathy.
3. Our vim, vigor, and vitality.
4. Our places in the auditorium, in rooms one and two, and in the hearts of the faculty.
5. The care of the shrubbery.

Item II: To anyone who will have them:

1. Our Freshman greenness.
2. Our Sophomore superciliousness.
3. Our Junior know-it-all laziness.
4. Our Senior dignity.

Item III: To the various fixtures of this building:

1. To Mary Payne, our courtesy and consideration.
2. To John, the janitor, all our lost fountain pens.
3. To Mr. Hartsell, our English notebooks.
4. To Miss Carroll, 7329 wide-open windows.
5. To Mr. Jones' umbrella, a parting curse.
6. To Miss Turner, Martha to take Russell's place.

Item IV: To the individuals specified:

1. Maret, Susie, Glenna, and Teen-da- to some poor Juniors, their job as candy girls.
2. Tubby to a Junior Romeo, his everlasting affection for Burgess Street.
3. Suzanne to Jane S., her privilege of wisecracking the faculty.
4. Helen Hill to Dail Bembury, her love for Mr. Isenhour.
5. Dorothy to Louise Perry, the square root of her knowledge of Geometry.
6. Mary Heath to Duard Jones, her infectious laugh.
7. Polly Deans and Leon Ganderson to any ten Juniors, their non-stop talking record.
8. Maret, Gusta, and Helen to some equally energetic Juniors their thankless task.
9. Isa to Kathleen, that thing called "it."
10. Rives to J. D. his place in the Latin class.

Duly witnessed, signed, and sworn both to and at, this the first day of June, one thousand nine hundred and thirty.

That Jo Howard will soon have the "Navy Blues."
That some Senior girls think that "You're a Bluffer." Tubby.
That Polly is a "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi."
That an A on Senior English is "Just a Memory." (and so is the Jr. banquet.)
Augusta telling Cyrus "I'm living on a Diet of Love."

That the candy girls are going to sell "Animal Crackers" for the freshmen.
That Isabelle is "Satisfied" when she's with Forest.
That Dora thinks "Honey" is "Sweeter Than Sweet."

Helen Hill saying "I ain't got "Nobody" cause "A Good Man is Hard to Find."
That Elliott Morgan has "Gotta Great Big Date with a Little Bitta Girl." (Martha Berry)

That Glenna is in love with "Sam the Old Accordian (furniture) Man."
That Edith is jealous "When You're With Somebody Else." Blades.
That it wouldn't hurt Mr. Isenhour to "Smile a Little Bit."
That Mr. Davis would like to ask "What Are You Waiting For, Mary?"
That Eleanor is "The Only One" for Eddie Bell.

Girl's Basketball Team

A goal! The game! Victory! The championship!

Well might this be said of the final game of the season when Elizabeth City High School and Washington High School were scrapping it out for the honor of claiming part of the Northeastern North Carolina High School Girls Basketball Championship. The final count was 16-14 with the E. C. H. S. girls on the big end of the score.

By winning this game our girls share the conference championship with the Conway sextette with a percentage of .875. A standing percentage of 917 was the record of the 1929-1930 team.

The girls' basketball season was undoubtedly the most successful in the memory of the students. Coach Dorothy Turner was chiefly responsible for the success of the team and her splendid coaching pulled the girls through many tight places.

Captain Dora Wells, center and forward on the crack sextette, played her best and last basketball season of her career for the old school. Captain Wells was high scorer of the season with 190 of her team's 342 points to her credit.

Mann and Simpson, although out of several games because of injuries and illness, came next in line for scoring honors with 80 and 30 points, respectively. Wilkins with 26 points, Lewis twelve, and Gard two completed the score.

Regular guards were Hill, Lewis, Nicholson, and M. F. Williams. These red-hot guards played the greatest season of their careers by holding Best City's opposing sharpshooters to 205 points.

The Score of the Games

| 1  | Edenton | E. C. H. S. 49 | 7  | Town Team | E. C. H. S. 37 |
| 2  | Hertford | E. C. H. S. 24 | 8  | Greenville | E. C. H. S. 31 |
| 4  | Conway | E. C. H. S. 22 | 10 | Conway | E. C. H. S. 16 |
| 5  | Edenton | E. C. H. S. 36 | 11 | Greenville | E. C. H. S. 28 |
| 6  | Hertford | E. C. H. S. 22 | 12 | Washington | E. C. H. S. 16 |
Miss Van Horn teaches English, sentence and theme.
She also coaches the debating team.
Mr. Hodges came to us the last half of the year.
He teaches algebra and arithmetic and we think he likes it here.
Next is Dorothy Turner with her French air.
She has quite a time with that wave in her hair.

Miss Williams teaches algebra and does she get a thrill
When anybody mentions Carolina or Chapel Hill!
Fred Isenhour teaches Science and he's fond of boating, too.
We're often forced to wonder if he will not join the Crewe.

Head of the Business Department is Mrs. Evelyn Crewe.
She handles quite efficiently
A job big enough for two.
Hunsucker teaches Science; he's the stuff from which girl's dreams are made.
His hobby's athletics and he's been with the boys in all the games they've played.

“Sing Folderol, sing Folderol,” we hear Mrs. Rigdon say.
But after waiting many weeks,
We saw the glee club play.

Then finally let us say a word or two, we often see Sam Williams and John his helper — without them where'd we be?

Reasons Why '30 Will Go Down In History

By Helen Hill

Other classes may come and go but '30 will go on forever for from its ranks have come the most famous graduates of this worthy institution. They will spread the fame of '30 abroad in every field of endeavor because of their potential possibilities.

First of course, is our Editor, Margaret Winder. She's the man behind the guns when it comes to running the Spotlight and she makes her staff step lively. Besides being a great newspaperwoman, she is one of the world's best debaters. It's useless to argue with her.

Then there's Tubby Sawyer who can "kill" a saxophone. He could make a wooden Indian dance. He has played in numerous orchestras and has won widespread fame as a musician.

Next we have our stellar athlete and three-letter man, Honey Johnson. He excels in all forms of athletics that the school affords. The big league baseball teams are missing a lot by not having Honey on their batting lists.

After him it might be well to mention Dora Wells, captain of the championship girls' basketball team and high-scorer for the past two years. Dora is the best basket-ball player E. C. H. S. has ever produced.

The terpsichorean celebrity from the class of '30 is Rennie Williams. Rennie can both sing and dance, but is better known for her dancing. She can do the classical kind and the jazzy kind or any other kind. She's really a wonder. Broadway ain't seen nothing yet! Just wait till Rennie gets up there.

After Rennie comes Fish Harrell, the greatest manager who ever was. Fish could manage anything. The only fly in his soup is the high cost of baseballs but nevertheless, he always manages to make both ends meet. Along with Fish we have another manager, 'Gusta Walker. She manages the business end of the Spotlight and manages to keep everybody out of her little red book where she has her staff all rated.

There is Russell Evans who has so many various accomplishments that we don't know in what line he is best. He may become an eminent physicist or a mathematician and he may devote himself to editing the sport column in the Daily Advance. He's sure to make good in one of these as he is already an authority in all these.

Then who doesn't know Suzanne Melick, famous for her wit and humor and her piano playing? She is the wittiest person in our class and can always find something to laugh at.

After Suzanne we might mention Bobby Lewis, the big blond who has so much power over women. That isn't all Bobby is well known for; he played end on the football team and sang bass in that famous Jones' Glee Club.

Our choice for masculine pulchritude is Joe Howard Stevens. None of the girls can make any time with him however, for his heart is at N. C. C. W. Besides being blessed with good looks, Howard is also the artist of the class. For a sample of his ability at dreaming just look at the Senior Statistic page.

Our female beauty is Isa Moran, and the "face that launched a thousand ships" has nothing on hers. She has been winning beauty contests ever since she entered high school.

Of course these are not all by any means, but lack of space prohibits any more of this panegyric.
Of superintendents we've the best,
He's interested in everything.
But we all know what he likes best
And that's to hear his Glee Club sing.

Mr. Hartsell runs the school,
The Students and the faculty,
But when at home with wife and son,
He's just another man, you'll see.

Mr. Casper teaches math and science quite industriously.
His interests are in Math and fish and Greenville which makes three.

Miss Carroll's a good English teacher we'll say,
She's the very one to get up a play.

Now here's to Miss Whaley who can cook and sew,
The way to man's heart's through his stomach,
you know.

Our history teacher and librarian is
Mrs. Clinkscales you see.
She's a jolly good sport in every way and she knows her History.

Miss Dunlap teaches Latin and she teaches us to say,
Many things in Latin, but she says most often, "Tacite!"

Miss Payne teaches Civics and History too.
She censors as childish
what we say and do.

Now Benson Willis Davis teaches English and Latin three.
He's a born mountaineer and gets "tres mal de mer"
when he goes out to sea.
Mr. Hodges: “What is a board foot?”
Mary Leigh Sheep: “It’s the lower end of a wooden leg.”

Mr. Davis (shaking Bobby Barrett): “I think the very devil has got hold of you.”
Bobby: “I think so myself.”

Miss Dunlap: “Susie, is there anything you can do better than anyone else?”
Susie: “Sure, read my own writing.”

T. C.: “The engine is missing.”
Milly: “That’s all right. It doesn’t show.”

Polly: Miss Carroll, how long can I live without brains.”
Miss Carroll: “That remains to be seen.”

Mr. Hartsell: “Is this your father’s signature?”
Tubby: “Nearest I could get to it.”

Rives: “Who originated the first proposition?”
Russell: “Noah.”
Rives: “How’s that.”
Russell: “He constructed an arc B. C.”

Tubby: “I’m going to sue Mr. Hartsell for libel.”
Fish: “Why?”
Tubby: “He wrote on my English paper, ‘You have bad relatives and antecedents.’”

Miss Carroll: “Hugh, I’m tempted to keep you in four hours.”
Tubby: “Yield not to temptation.”

Mr. Isenhour: “Edna, have you written up your experiment?”
Edna: (Silent, translating French and doesn’t want to be disturbed.)
Mr. Isenhour: “Edna Mae Scott, have you written up your experiment?”
Edna: “Frederick Sinclair Isenhour. No.”

Margaret: “Aw shut up! You’re the biggest dunce in the room.”
Miss Dunlap: “Children, children, don’t forget that I’m in here.”

Bobby: “Well, professor, I don’t believe in kissing myself.”
Mr. Casper: “No, I generally prefer some one else.”

Suzanne was sitting with her feet stretched far into the aisle and was busily chewing gum when Miss Turner espied her.

“Suzanne,” she called sharply, “take the gum out of your mouth and put your feet in.”

Joke Editor: “Have you heard my last joke?”
Student: “Mighty glad to hear it’s your last.”

The Seniors get all the credit,
The school gets all the fame,
The printer gets all the money,
But the staff gets all the blame.

Alice Barrow: “Alice, what are you going to do in your old age?”
Alice Davis: “Graduate.”

Hugh: “He left the club because someone told a story he didn’t approve of.”
Sweet Young Thing: “Oh, how noble of him! What was the story?”

“How did you come out in your test?”
“I knocked ’em cold.”
“How’s that?”
“I got zero.”

Mr. Casper: “What? You can’t answer that question! Why, when George Washington was your age, he was a surveyor.”
Houghton Ehringhaus: “Yes, sir, and when he was your age, he was President of the United States.”
